Get that Job!

Applying and interviewing for jobs, internships or master programmes in English

Considering career opportunities within internationally oriented firms?

Interested in doing an internship abroad?

Planning an international master degree?

Then you may need to submit application materials and participate in interviews in English.

Our workshop focuses on distinctive aspects of applying in English-speaking countries or with any organization worldwide which operates internationally. It provides training in navigating selected stages of that process, including creating your curriculum vitae and covering letter and presenting yourself convincingly in the interview. Differences between British and American practices as well as advices regarding the online interview are also addressed.

The workshop is held in English by a native speaker. It is interactive, and you will have the opportunity to practice interviewing and receive feedback.

Andrew Cerniski, the Lecturer, holds degrees in business administration, creative writing and English literature. He has been training university students and graduates in job-application skills for over 15 years. For ten years he was head of the business English programme of the Frankfurt branch of City University of Bellevue, Washington State.

Since 2002 he has managed English Inc. (www.english-inc.de), a Heidelberg-based provider of business English training to companies.
